Elegance of Home.

I never saw a garment too fine for man or maid; there never was a chair too good for a cobbler or a cooper, or a King to sit in; never a house too fine to shelter the human head. These elements about us, the glorious sky, the imperial sun, are not too good for the human race. Elgance fits man. But we do not value these tools for housekeeping a little more than they are worth, and sometimes mortgage a house for more than we put into it. I would rather eat my dinner off the head of a barrel or dress after the fashion of John the Baptist in the wilderness or sit on a block all my life, than consume all myself before I got to a home, and take so much pains with the outside that the inside was as hollow as an empty nut. Beauty is a great thing but beauty of garments, house and furniture are tawdry ornaments compared with domestic love. All the elegance in the world will not make a home, and I would give more for a spoonful of real hearty love than for whole ship loads of furniture, and all the gorgeousness all the upholsterers in the world can gather.—Dr.
Holmes.

SOME good roads or trails should be built along the river up to, and beyond Hermit's Peak. Some of the very finest scenery in this western country is to be found in that region.
It is not so tame, as people looking at it from a distance, might imagine. It lies there in all its native wildness, unruffled by the hand of man, but at present it is almost impossible for tourists to reach the places of greatest beauty and grandeur. Yet a small amount of money expended in the right way would go a long way towards making it accessible to tourists.
When a good way has been made to it, and the imagination of man shall have clothed it in a fictitious cloak of grandeur, the scenery at the headwaters of the little Gallinas will be as sublime as the "petty parks," and the Gardens of the Gods of Colorado.

The Question of Degree.

Justice of the Peace Morrison in deciding the case on the preliminary hearing of Davidson concluded that the prisoner had committed murder by reckless shooting and disregard of life which would class the deed under the head of murder in the second degree, instead of that premeditated and malicious design to effect the death of the victim which would bring it under the head of murder in the first degree. With this view of the case, he held the prisoner to bail under $5,000. This occasioned some criticism from outside parties who thought the defendant should have been committed without bail.
The question is not likely to be of practical importance as bail of $5,- 000 should he give it, will be almost as secure as the jail, but from a view of the evidence rendered on the preliminary and considering the question of degree abstractly from the point of bringing the prisoner to trial at court it would seem as if the justice had erred. A man need not shulk around for a week or two thinking about killing another person, in order to constitute a premeditated design to murder. He can form his design in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, kill his victim and commit murder in the first degree. In this case it would appear from the testimony that Davidson was just boiling over, going to utter ruin in order to kill somebody.
He wanted to kill a woman in a hack they met coming over. He ordered Starbird to stop two or three times, and the latter not doing so he shot at him, hit him and killed him. He may not have had any cause to do so but that does not lessen the maliciousness of the intent. This poor hardworking young man shot down without cause would seem to be about the worst case in the whole catalogue of murder. He is killed because he was innocent and his young wife is left heart-broken and his death is not counted the worst of crimes. The reasoning is incorrect.

—Miss Bonfield, a schoolmistress at Shelbyville, Ind., is white, and her affiliated husband, Mr. Turman, is black. Their engagement was made public by Turman's discarded sweetheart, who found a love letter from Miss Bonfield in his pocket, and sent it to the school trustees. The school-mistress was immediately dismissed, but one of the local newspapers and all of the clergymen demand her reinstatement.

—Secretary Sherman has experienced a change of heart, since the presidential canvass began. He now says, that he "regards the whole feature of public patronage, as a hindrance rather than a help to presidential aspirations." "Experience is a good schoolmaster.

FOUND.—A. B. Stone's Rubber Gum Paint—a perfect protection for all outside surfaces: iron fences, lamp posts, shingle roofs, iron bridges, wood stoops, tin or iron roofs, smokestacks, or anything exposed to the sun, rain, frost or heat. I will apply this paint for $1.25 per hundred feet, warranting it to last three times as long as any other paint, and it is fireproof; so by using it on shingle roofs it often saves other houses from burning by being near others when others are burning. After a roof has been painted with this paint you can light a pine knot and throw it upon it and the knot will burn to ashes without injuring the roof. On tin or iron I warrant it not to crack, roll or blister.
I can warrant this paint for seven years. Leave orders at the GAZETTE office. A. B. STONE.
